The "Costa Rica" Incident.

SAN SALVADOR, Nov. 11.—Minister Young has telegraphed to the Honduran minister of foreign affairs, asking if his government accepts the responsibility for the act of the commander of the port of Amapala, when he fired upon the Pacific mail steamer Costa Rica when she was flying the American flag.

A Glut of Sailors.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11.—The arrival of the fleet of whaling vessels, so many of which came in clean and their crews consequently destitute, has caused a glut in the sailor market. Men are ready to ship at almost any price, and yesterday the American ship Sterling secured 16 men for a voyage around the Horn to New York for 50 cents a day.

CABLE LETTER.

What Will the Irish Do?—Demands of Anti-Parnellites—Anarchist Demonstrations.

British Machinery Shut Out of China—Business Conditions Bad—Gladstone's Physician.

(Copyright 1893 by the United Press.)

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The arranging of the programme for the annual conference of the Conservative National Union was only finished last night. The time spent upon the agenda shows how difficult the party managers have found it to get a good rallying cry.

THE PROGRAMME.

as finally announced, contains nothing new. It avoids making any declaration on the questions of electoral reform, the disestablishment of the church in Wales or any political issues on which it would be dangerous to commit the party. Lord Dunraven, who besides being a genuine sportsman, takes great interest in the success of the Conservatives, will preside at the Conference, and Lord Salisbury will make a speech on the second day. Sir Ellis Ashmead Bartlett, who sits in Parliament for one of the Sheffield divisions, will move the adoption of a resolution approving the rejection by the House of Lords of the Home Rule bill, which it is scarcely necessary to state will be unanimously adopted. Sir Albert Kaye Rollitt, who represents the Southern division of Walsingham in the House of Commons, will speak in favor of boards of arbitration for the settlement of trades disputes. Mr. Arthur Hugh Smith-Barry, representative in Parliament of the South division of Huntingdon, will call the attention of the Conference to the time wasted by Parliament in discussing an

IMPOSSIBLE HOME RULE BILL.

Among the more prominent resolutions to be submitted will be one affirming that Great Britain is suffering from the abject submission of Parliament to the demands of the Irish demagogues. Viewed as a whole, no entire programme was ever submitted to a full party caucus. It is significant that nothing is said in the programme about forcing the dissolution of Parliament. The Conservative cue, now being followed by the press and on the platform represents the Government as certain to be ousted at the next session, either on the measures providing for the disestablishment of the Church in Wales, or Home Rule. It is a fact that unless the anti-Parnellite faction of the Irish parliamentary party gives the Government unrestrained support during the divisions on the disestablishment bill, Mr. Gladstone and his ministry will be compelled to resign. The budget, too, will prove a source of severe trial. The trade of Great Britain is so depressed and the customs receipts are so diminished, while the expenditures are not lessened, that an enormous deficit will stare the Government in the face. The only possible solution of the financial question will be the imposition of fresh taxation, and this will, of course, make trouble. Having these facts in mind the Conservatives argue that there is no need to clamor for the dissolution of Parliament. They are satisfied to let the ministry stew in its own juice. With regard to the fidelity of

on which the Government will depend for its existence, it can be plainly said that it is being subjected to a heavy strain. The visit of Home Secretary Aquith to Dublin for the purpose of conferring with Mr. Morley, chief secretary for Ireland, was fruitless of result as far as benefit to the Irish political prisoners and the evicted tenants is concerned. Mr. Morley was in favor of making concessions of these questions to the Irish members of Parliament in order to secure their support to the Government, but his policy was overridden by Mr. Aquith. The latter's return from Dublin has been followed by a sequence of coercive measures similar to those that prevailed during the regime of Mr. Balfour as Chief Secretary. The eviction campaign on the De Freyne estates and the prosecution of William Field, Parnellite member of Parliament for the St. Patrick division of Dublin, Luke Patrick Hayden, Parnellite member of Parliament for South Roscommon, and those others who were yesterday committed for trial on charges of rioting while the evictions were being made, follow the old path beaten by the Conservatives when in power. Eleven of the most popular men in Connaught have been wisely selected for prosecution by the Liberal Government which entered office pledged to end coercion, to restore evicted tenants to their holdings and to dismiss from office resident Tory magistrates. Nothing keeps Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien and other anti-Parnellites faithful to Mr. Gladstone but the fear that, without him, Home Rule would die. Private representations made by the Irish leaders to Messrs. Gladstone and Morley on the difficulty of their opposition, received a sympathetic but not a practical response. The strong element in the cabinet opposed to Mr. Morley triumphs for the time, but it requires few gifts as a political prophet to foretell that the future contains dangers to the present administration that will tax all the resourceful energies of Mr. Gladstone to avoid. The last night at the South Place will, as expected, lead to the prosecution of Mowbray, the publisher of the Commonwealth, the organ of the London anarchists, and Samuels, editor of that paper. The sentiments expressed by these two men in their papers were outrageous. The representative of the United Press to-day had an interview with Samuels, who declared that he did not fear being arrested and the police could not compel him to close his mouth. He lauded the men who, in Barcelona, had thrown the bombs that had killed the rich. It was a fitting revenge he declared for the murder of hero Pallas, who, in trying to kill General Martinez Campos was only desirous of ridding the world of a tyrant. Continuing, Samuels said that the hypocritical comments on the anarchists that had appeared in the newspapers were the veriest nonsense. They appeared side by side with stories reporting the slaughter of Matabels and the starvation of English miners. The explosion in the Opera House at Barcelona, he added, was nothing compared to what could and would be done by desperate men. Genuine anarchists thought the bomb throwing in Barcelona a glorious deed. It was only the beginning of reprisals upon the rich and those in power. If another companion was murdered in connection with the Martinez Campos occurrence, other avengers would arise and continue the bloody social war that would end the race of the capitalists. The people of the United States would not make reparation for the hanging of the Chicago anarchists, who were martyrs in a great cause. The work of Ravachol in Paris and Pallas in Barcelona, proved that anarchism was spreading and that it could not be crushed out.

TRADE MATTERS.

China some time ago issued an edict forbidding the importation of machinery. This touched English manufacturers in a soft spot, and representations were made to Lord Rosebery, the foreign minister, as to the loss British manufacturers would sustain, and Lord Rosebery sent instructions to the British Minister at Peking to vigorously protest against the prohibition, which is due to the fact that Li Hung Chang, the viceroy of Petchi Li, and a number of Chinese officials are about to start cotton spinning mills in Shanghai, and fearing foreign competition, Li Hung Chang caused the edict to be issued. Lord Rosebery contends that every article of commerce can be imported into China unless it is included in the list of prohibitions in the tariff. Machinery is not so included, and the British manufacturers trust that the edict will shortly be rescinded. The collapse of the business on the exchange is phenomenal. It is contended that the present condition is the worst in the memory of man. A number of firms are dissolving partnerships and retiring from business. The clerical staff in the offices are being reduced and business economies are being practised in every direction. Throughout the present week scarcely enough business was done to keep a dozen brokers employed. The course of prices in has completely altered the pessimistic predictions that a fall would inevitably follow the repeal of the silver purchase clause of the Sherman act by the American Congress. The financial papers give various explanations of the strength of the market. Summed up, these explanations are that there is a strong demand for silver for China and Japan, while the great silver mining companies continue to hold their stocks. Then the report that the American Treasury department ordered the coinage of a portion of the metal bought under the Sherman Act is admitted to have been of assistance in averting the expected troubles. The Economist holds that the action of the American treasury would have been better advised if it had made provision for its wants by issuing bonds. In the meantime, it says, it has had recourse to purely American resources. The paper refrains from adding that it expected a new issue of bonds and was disappointed.

Mr. Gladstone has selected as his physician to succeed Sir Andrew Clark, who was buried to-day, William Henry Broadbent, who is one of the three physicians in ordinary to the Prince of Wales. Mr. Gladstone's extreme age necessitates an almost daily medical supervision being kept over him. Dr. Clark advised Mr. Gladstone that, failing himself, Dr. Broadbent or Dr. Douglas Powell, a physician extraordinary to the Queen, be selected in his stead. At the funeral to-day of his physician and friend, Mr. Gladstone looked bent and broken, but he straightened up as he left Westminster Abbey after the ceremonies had been ended.

CAPITAL NOTES.

Australian Trade Conference Next Year—A Colonial Commercial Union Suggested.

Coal Oil Developments in Ontario—Northwest Farmers to Lecture in England.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—The adherents in Ottawa of the United Empire Trade League express great satisfaction at the action of the Government in promptly confirming the arrangement made by Hon. Mr. Bowell in Australia for a commercial conference of colonial representatives at Ottawa next year. It is suggested that the representatives should be invited to attend a conference from the South African and West Indian colonies as well as from Australasia in order, if possible, to establish a colonial commercial union. It is pointed out that the time is very opportune for action by the Government in this direction.

The Geological Survey Department has been informed that several gas wells in the vicinity of Port Colborne, Ont., which have been exhausted, are now flowing oil. One company secured thirteen of these wells, and will develop their oil resources. Arrangements are being made by the Government to send a number of Northwest farmers to Great Britain this winter to address gatherings in the sections of the Mother Country whence they originally came.

Employers' Liability.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The House of Commons rejected by a vote of 236 to 217, last evening, the amendment of the employers' liability bill, proposed by William McLaren, Radical, on Wednesday. The amendment was that workmen should be privileged under certain conditions to exempt themselves from the provisions of the bill. It was resisted by the Government. The Conservatives had hopes of defeating the Government on the vote.

Uniform Miners' Wages.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Delegates to the Coal Miners' Federation have made an offer to the Mine Owners' Association on the wages dispute, asking them to give the men a uniform daily wage of seven shillings (£1.75); for stallmen six shillings (£1.50), and abolishing the contract system.

The "New Goods" will soon arrive from the "Eastern Markets" for Weiler Bros. (A pleasant surprise to all.)

THE FATHERLAND.

The Kaiser Will Scarcely Proceed With His Declared Army Gambling Policy.

Matters Political—"A New Political Dawn Breaking"—Royal Movements—Disclosures.

(Copyright of 1893 by the United Press.)

BERLIN, Nov. 11.—The Emperor William's desire to make a signal example of the officers involved in the Hanover gambling case appears to have been overruled. In military circles it is maintained that the Emperor cannot directly order the dismissal from the service of the officers concerned, but must act through the regular authorities. It is certain that some influential personages do not take the severe view of the case that the Emperor takes. No authentic list of dismissals has yet been made known, but rumors point to several officers, regarding whom the officials at the war office decline to give any information. It is officially stated that the enforced retirements from the army in consequence of the scandal will not be numerous. Clement counsels have prevailed, and in consequence the resignation of a few of those implicated will be requested, and those retirements will be so managed as to be unattended with public ignominy.

In ascertaining the feeling in high military quarters, the representative of the United Press found that the idea of dismissal was generally resented. Military men think that it would be an enormous injustice to cashier the few officers who testified in the case, while several hundred others equally involved escaped. Then, too, it is believed the Emperor, however angry it might be, would not sacrifice officers for the sake of gratifying the sham moral outcries of civilians. So far as is known to the officers concerned, the Emperor's practical action has been limited to communications severely censuring the culprits. His Majesty has also ordered that in future sporting contests officers ride none but their own or their comrades' horses, and has forbidden the racing of horses under false names. Conversations in public places have disclosed a strong class sentiment of irritation against the criticisms of civilians and of profound confidence that the Emperor will deal gently with the implicated officers.

Although the elections for members of the Landtag have not materially altered the relative strength of the political parties in that body, the Conservatives, winning nineteen seats, hold the advantage. The Agrarians also return a stronger delegation than they had at the last session. The House contains a large representation of the official element, forty-seven of the members, all of whom belong to the Conservative party, holding Government appointments. The Freisinnige groups have lost nine seats of twenty-nine. Fourteen of these remaining to them are held by Richters, and six by Rickertists. Some well-known figures disappear from the House, among them being Herr von Kessel, from the Free Conservative benches, Professors Selig and Haenel, from the Liberals, and Herr Reichensperger from the Centrists.

The Conservative journals are jubilant over the result of the elections. They predict that a coalition will force the Government to renounce its economic policy and adopt a moderately agrarian one, which would mean protective tariffs. The Kreuz Zeitung also demands the revival of the famous scholastic project which led to the retirement of Count von Seidlitz. The Conservatives have not power enough of themselves to effect reactionary legislation, and a majority of the House must be formed by a coalition with the Free Conservatives and National Liberals, and will modify the reactionist tendency of the Conservatives. Prince Bismarck, upon learning of the Freisinnige defeats, is credited with saying to his chief ranger, Herr Leang, that a new political dawn is beginning to break.

The statement that the Russian Government had issued a decree that all registered letters are to be opened in the presence of the persons to whom they are addressed, and if found to contain money from abroad, seventy-five per cent. of the amount is to be seized, had its origin in a despatch from the St. Petersburg correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger. The facts are that for a long time the Russian authorities have taxed registered letters. Max Caro, a noted German, who has long been a resident of Russia, in conversation with a representative of the United Press, stated that registered letters containing money or valuables were generally confiscated by the Russian Government.

Emperor William hunted yesterday at Hechingen over the estates of the Prince of Hohenzollern. A great Imperial Court hunt has been fixed for the 17th instant, in the forest of Letzingen. The Grand Duke of Hesse, the Grand Duke of Oldenburg and a number of princely personages will take part in the sport. The report that the Emperor and Empress have arranged to visit Rome in April is discredited in Court circles.

Sensational disclosures are expected touching irregularities in the Prussian military commissariat. A large wholesale butcher of Berlin is about to be prosecuted for supplying the army with diseased meat. His firm, which is a long established one, provides two army corps with meat, and is reputed to clear a profit of 700,000 marks yearly. A bookkeeper discharged by the firm some time ago, has reported to the War Office that certain buyers for the army received regular presents from the firm, and that the firm was allowed to purvey any kind of meat it chose. The progress of the inquiry suggests the belief that the outbreak of typhoid in certain regiments was due to bad meat thus supplied. The newspapers are not allowed to publish the whole story as the case is sub-judice.

Rome and the United States.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Dispatches from Rome convey the intelligence that Monsignor Satolli, papal delegate to the United States, will remain at Washington. Dr. O'Connell, recorder of the American college, yesterday presented the Pope a volume containing the speeches and State papers of President Cleveland. The Pope made some flattering remarks upon the gift.

There is a good prospect of a poultry show being held here next month. A number of local fanciers have taken the matter up in an energetic manner, and they have received every encouragement in town and from the outside.

DUNCAN.

DUNCAN, Nov. 11.—E. M. Skinner, P.L.S., arrived from Victoria on Monday last.

W. A. Robertson came up from Victoria and left for Cowichan lake on Tuesday.

H. B. W. Aikman, who arrived from Victoria the day previous, left for the city on Wednesday by the same train; the following also left bound for the capital: Mrs. D. Alexander, Angus J. Bell and H. F. Armstrong, the latter, who recently sold his ranch at Somenos to H. Greaves, on his way to visit his old home in New Brunswick.

CLOVERDALE.

CLOVERDALE, Nov. 9.—This generally very quiet village had a hot time last night, when the Odd Fellows' hall was entirely destroyed by fire; loss, $2,500; insurance, $1,500.

About a week ago the lower part was rented by a Mr. Woods for the purpose of carrying on a general store, and Mr. Woods and his partner have been ever since engaged in putting up shelves and counters. They were about through, and expected their stock of goods this week. The origin of the fire is very mysterious, as there has been no fire in the lower part of the building for over a year, and none in the upstairs since last Friday night, neither do any of the gentlemen working there smoke or carry matches.

The fire broke out about 8:30 in the evening, at the rear of the building. At about fifteen minutes to 9 a loud explosion occurred which was felt at a distance of over a half mile, blowing out both ends of the building and throwing a couple of gentlemen some twenty feet, without, however, doing more than bruising them a little. Great excitement prevails as this is the second store that has been started here, and both have been destroyed by fire.

The town was also visited last Saturday night by three villainous looking tramps, who slept in an empty box car standing on the side track, and Sunday morning visited some of the neighboring houses, trying to force the back door of the section house, inhabited at the time only by a woman and two small children, but seeing three or four of the men of Cloverdale coming they started on foot for Uncle Sam's boundary line, about seven miles south, and have not since been heard of.

AUTUMN RAINS.

Meadows Flooded and Traffic Interrupted on the Mainland-Cowichan Flats Inundated.

CLOVERDALE, Nov. 10.—(Special)—The weather has been bad for some time here; rain almost every day and last Wednesday five inches of snow. What are known as the Serpentine flats are entirely flooded to the depth of some two feet or more; in some places it is even over the railroad and the Yale road. At Port Kells' brickyard, seven miles north on the Fraser, the rain has done considerable damage, on Friday and Saturday delaying the train to allow some repairs to be done. The new corduroy laid down on the Clover Valley road about two weeks ago, is all afloat for lack of gravel to weight it down. The other roads around are in shockingly bad condition.

DUNCAN, Nov. 11.—(Special)—Owing to the heavy rains on Monday and Tuesday last, there have been freshets in the Cowichan river. A part of the Cowichan flats and the road from the Koksilah station to the flats were flooded. A few scattering logs have passed under the railway bridge at Duncan, where workmen are busily engaged dumping rock to protect the piers of the bridge and the banks at the approaches.

A burlesque initiation ceremony will be a feature of the entertainment, for which a large number of invitations have been issued.

Far West and Sunset lodges at their meeting conferred the rank of Esquire on several candidates for Victoria lodge. McFadden occupied the Select Councillor's chair in the absence of Select Councillor Bro. Gleeson, who, by the way, has been very ill with la grippe, and also the whole of the Gleeson family. The meeting of the council was interesting and instructive, two candidates being balloted for and elected.

This lodge is progressing rapidly, and will soon be second to none in the Province.

Ottawa Citizen: The Marine and Fisheries Department have made a somewhat startling discovery in regard to the administration of the law relating to certificated masters and mates, in the Maritime Provinces. In 1883 an act was put in operation which required Canadian sailing ships of over 100 tons, engaged in the coasting trade or plying on the inland waters, to have a certificated master. It also requires every Canadian steamer to have a certificated mate as well as certificated masters, and the act places the duty of enforcing the law on Collectors of Customs. An inquiry discovered that all over the Maritime Provinces the act had for ten long years been a dead letter, as far as ferry boats and tugs are concerned; the collectors in some unaccountable way interpreting the law as not applying to tugs and ferries. The minister of marine and fisheries has been stormed by applications to suspend the operations of this Act until certificated officers can be got. He has, however, refused to assume an authority of responsibility which Parliament did not give him. All the parties concerned in the running of vessels by uncertificated officers will be prosecuted, and the conduct of the officers responsible for the enforcement of the Act will be reported to the head of their department.

Saved Her Life.

Mrs. C. J. WOODBRIDGE, of Wortham, Texas, saved the life of her child by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

"One of my children had Croup. The case was attended by our physician, and was supposed to be well under control. One night I was startled by the child's hard breathing, and on going to it found it struggling. It had nearly ceased to breathe. Realizing that the child's alarming condition had become possible in spite of the medicines given, I reasoned that such remedies would be of no avail. Having part of a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, I gave the child three doses, at short intervals, and anxiously waited results. From the moment the Pectoral was given, the child's breathing grew easier, and in a short time, she was sleeping quietly and breathing naturally. The child is alive and well to-day, and I do not hesitate to say that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved her life."

THE REID-CUFF MATCH.

Local Pugilists Have a Meeting Which Ends in the Fourth Round.

A Disgraceful Business Throughout—An Answer for Dunn—Local Football.

JUDGED by the verdict of the spectators who last evening filled the air with lamentations, the "fight to a finish," which was the sporting event of yesterday afternoon, was not much more exciting than would have been so much gymnasium exercise upon the regulation windbag. The principals were Ed. Cuff and "Professor" George Reid, both of whom are for the time-being residents of Victoria. Cuff came here from the Sound, but before going there he had gained notoriety in San Francisco by putting an opponent into a sleep so sound that he never awoke. He has the appearance of a man who can stand any amount of punishment, and when aroused he fights with bull dog ferocity. Reid has a good name as an instructor, but in serious work his performances have been disappointing. The contest determined yesterday has been on the cards for several weeks. The scene of the affair was the Driving Park, and the appointed time was three o'clock in the afternoon. No announcement had been made in the newspapers, and during the week "bluff" allusions had been made to the probability of an excursion to some unfrequented island in the Gulf or a hurried visit to the gravel pits at Spring Ridge; and mystery was thus created which helped to increase the interest in the affair. Yesterday morning, however, word of the proper locality and time was boldly passed around, and in consequence, as three o'clock approached, there was quite a procession of vehicles up Fort street, and the electric cars were well filled.

As the consideration was to be the gate money the principals were in no hurry to commence while there was a prospect of any further arrivals, and it was near four o'clock when the master of ceremonies called upon the crowd, in the bar-room of the park hotel, to vacate whilst it was being cleared for the fray. When they got outside, a tall young man with a straw hat was installed as doorkeeper, and another offered tickets of admission for sale, at the modest price—for a fight to a finish—of $2 each. About sixty tickets were sold, and there were just enough spectators to line the four sides of the room, which served as a ring without any ropes.

Cuff entered attended by Mike Quilligan, and Bob Foster, a fellow "professor," looked after Reid. Jack Hayes, master of ceremonies, assumed the duties of referee, after that office had been offered to and declined by "Billy" Smith, the Australian pugilist, who sententiously remarked, "I don't want to have anything to do with it." The referee opened the proceeding with the announcement that the pivot blow—Reid's favorite—was barred, and that there had got to be a fight and a decision given before the money would be paid over. Then the men stepped forward and shook hands. They were stripped, Reid wearing only a light pair of trunks and Cuff knee breeches. They had on hard three-ounce gloves. In anticipation of the possibility of a visit by the police, a couple of pairs of soft gloves were in reserve which some of the spectators were to assume, for the purpose of a mimic contest, should the police appear.

It was 4.10 o'clock when time was called for the first round of three minutes. After a few moments cautious sparring Cuff landed a heavy blow on Reid's neck, and then each got in a good tap on the other's chest. Reid danced nimbly about, and landed a number of blows on Cuff's side, but seemed to exhaust himself and when Cuff made a rush at him he fell to his knees beside the counter. He was quickly up, however, and there was a brisk exchange of ineffective blows on the faces. Reid dodged his antagonist, but at length came in the way of a powerful drive, which caught him in the chest and brought him to his knees against the wall. "That's a bird," he gasped, as he came up with a faint smile. The men were again paying attention to each other's faces when time was called, and they went to their corners for a minute.

The second round opened in a spirited manner, Cuff getting in some severe blows on Reid's face. Careful sparring followed, and then Reid got his chance, landing two blows, the first on Cuff's chest and the next on the back of his neck. His blows lacked force, however, as he appeared to be badly winded. Cuff in return planted his fist on Reid's nose, and the men clinched; they separated and came together again in the same fashion, and when they broke away time was up.

In the third round nearly a minute elapsed before the first blows were exchanged. Cuff took up his station, as usual, in the centre of the room, and Reid circled about him. Cuff made a rush, and Reid backed up against the wall. Then each reached for the other's lower chest, and landed.

"We both hit out the same way," said Reid, who had been making running remarks all through.

"We didn't go the same way that time," he added, as he placed a blow on Cuff's nose. "Talk less and you'll get along better," one of the spectators called out.

"If I didn't talk I'd do nothing—that was a bird!" replied Reid, the latter exclamation being the acknowledgment of a blow which brought him to his knees just as time was called.

The fourth round opened with a hot exchange of blows about the head and face, and Reid catching his opponent napping got in his best hit of the day, a straight tip on the mouth which promptly drew a stream of blood. This infuriated Cuff, and he made a savage onslaught. Wiping his mouth with his glove, he covered that with blood, and every one of a swift succession of blows he rained on Reid, left its red mark. Reid made for the wall, and when he could go no further, crouched against it. Cuff followed up hammering him until Reid got down to his knees and buried his head for shelter, while Cuff spatting his back with blood, as he rained down his blows, at the same time shouting: "Stand up you cur!" The crowd finally hauled him off, and the referee announced Cuff the winner, Reid having failed to rise within the ten seconds required.

"Am I out?" inquired the vanquished, and being answered in the affirmative, he skipped nimbly away to his corner. Cuff attempted to follow him, but a couple of men caught him by the throat and held him back. There was a scene of disorder, and when quiet was a little restored the referee ordered the men to shake hands before parting. As Reid came up for this purpose, Cuff struck him viciously on the nose. "You are a cur, that's all," he said. "Yes, yes," humbly assented Reid, "call me what you like," and he disappeared to the dressing room, while the crowd got outside.

A report that the police were coming caused some excitement for a moment, but it proved to be a false alarm. When the first off were half way into town they met Sergeant Langley and a couple of members of the Provincial police—within whose jurisdiction, the fight was held—driving rapidly out towards the park, but when the officers arrived there the place was pretty well deserted.

It is needless to say that the spectators were very much dissatisfied with the sudden termination of the fight, for they had expected that Reid would make a braver stand, though Cuff was all along the favorite.

FOOTBALL.

VICTORIA V. "CROCKS."

Yesterday afternoon, a very enjoyable game of football took place at Beacon Hill between "the Cocks," a team picked by Mr. Holt, and the Victoria Rugby Football club, who scored another win, making their record, so far, unbroken. The game was really between the past and present Rugby teams, as the "Cocks" were mainly men who rendered good service for the club two or three years ago. A good crowd of spectators witnessed the match. The Victorians scored two tries in each half, making eight points in all, against nothing for their opponents, although the match was not nearly so one-sided as the score would indicate. Lack of space prevents a notice of the main features. An unfortunate accident occurred in the first half. G. Hugonin, who had been playing a faultless game at hack for the "Cocks," while attempting to break through with the ball, was caught and fell heavily, breaking his collar bone. The game was stopped while he was conveyed from the field, Dr. Watt attending to him.

COLLEGE V. CHOR.

Yesterday morning a return match of Association football was played at Beacon Hill between the second eleven of Victoria College and the boys of the Cathedral Choir. A very close and exciting game resulted in a win for the College by one goal to nil. H. Wilson, Mitten Dunlevy and Gillespie showed good form for the College, and Berkeley, Nesbitt, Pidcock and Mitchell, played well for the Choir.

WRESTLING.

READY FOR DUNN.

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 11.—(Special)—J. W. Moffatt, a wrestler of some note, says he is willing to accept the challenge sent out from Victoria, B.C., by Harry Dunn, the Australian champion. He would prefer wrestling in the East for any amount than to visit the Pacific Coast. [Dunn is at present visiting Nanaimo; no doubt Mr. Moffatt will hear from him without delay.]

HERE AND THERE.

Yesterday's run of the Hunt Club was out to Cedar Hill, Mr. Gore and his companion here leaving a good trail. The turn out was a very satisfactory one.

BRAZILIAN AFFAIRS.

Minister Mendonças Says Mello's Position is a Critical One.

Conflicting Statements as to the Condition of Affairs Between Parties.

WASHINGTON CITY, Nov. 10.—Senor Mendonças, Brazilian Minister, does not believe that Admiral Mello has again bombarded Rio Janeiro, although he has received by way of London, news which would indicate that the rebel leader yesterday poured a furious fusillade of shot and shell into the Brazilian capital. The information, although unofficial, came, the minister frankly states, from a trustworthy source. Senor Mendonças has no official confirmation of the report. He is in daily, almost hourly, communication with the Brazilian foreign office, but none of his advices make mention of any overt act recently on Mello's part. A dispatch from President Peixoto, made public in New York, contains no reference to a bombardment, and he regards it as unlikely that the city should have been shelled without the fact becoming generally known.

Admiral Mello's situation is described by Senor Mendonças as a desperate one. His ships are still in a badly crippled condition as a result of their encounters a fortnight ago with the Government forces. He has no communication with the mainland. He secures his supplies of food by running alongside the small coasters which carry produce to Rio and paying for them in scrip. This scrip, the minister added, will have to be redeemed by the de facto government when the rebellion is crushed, which is another reason why it is desirable to end the war as speedily as possible. Moreover, Mello's ammunition is getting rapidly exhausted. His position in the harbor is such that he cannot, under any circumstances, inflict damage upon any but the more isolated and outlying parts of the capital. The government buildings and great commercial houses are out of the range of his guns. The Peixoto government, Senor Mendonças says, is holding its own. The congress, the army, the several staff assemblies and the people generally from Rio Grande to Peru are loyal to the President. The vessels fitting out at New York are expected to be of great service to Peixoto, and their arrival at Rio is anxiously awaited.

Minister Mendonças' advices are that the representatives of the Brazilian monarchical party in Europe are disheartened at the lack of responsiveness to their sentiments among the people of Brazil. They had expected a great uprising as a consequence of Mello's revolt, and they do not conceal their disappointment that it did not occur. This declaration led the minister to add that there is no monarchical party as a party in the republic. Whatever he says may be the outcome of the pending troubles the republic will continue. Brazil has seen the last of a monarchy with the deportation of Dom Pedro.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The Times has this dispatch from Rio de Janeiro: On November 3 the insurgents placed their guns on the Island of Mocangué. They have daily skirmishes with the government troops. The government forts continued to fire on Villegagnon Island. The casualties are small. The admiral has set a circular note to the legations asking them to recognize his rights as a belligerent, and thus decrease the danger to life and property. The legations consider his application premature. There is, however, a strong undercurrent of feeling Small Lot Household Furniture, Stove and Pipes, Crockery, etc., etc.

This Property is within easy distance of many of the most important Gold, Silver and Coal Mines in West Kootenay. The population of this district will increase this year by at least 10,000; the area of farmland is very limited, and from this it may be fairly asserted that beef and all classes of farm produce will find a ready and lucrative market. The soil is the best bottom land, and the locality is one of the few places in the Province where so large a piece of good farm land can be found in one block. A river runs through the property, and rainbow trout are plentiful and afford capital sport. Deer abound in considerable numbers. Bear, Wolf, Coyote and other large game are to be found in the hills. There are two creeks recorded and belonging to the estate, one flows all the year round. Limestone and brick clay are to be had in the valley.

The Cattle are well bred; a much larger herd could be farmed with the place. The bunch grass on the hills in the vicinity covers many thousands of acres, and is available to the few land owners in the valleys. All buildings and fences about the farm are a good order, and farming operations can be gone on with at once; about 180 acres of ploughing have been, so far, provided for this year's work.

The Climate is not severe, the land being about 1,100 feet above sea level; the station was for many years the winter quarters of the H. B. Co.'s pack trains. There is a weekly express in and out. Goods and supplies at wholesale can be procured on order and delivered in 48 hours.

The Title is by grant from the Crown, and is free of all encumbrances. Immediate possession can be given.

Important Railway works are now in progress within moderate distance, and two railway lines have been run to pass close to or through the estate, which can be reached in the spring in three days' journey from Victoria.

The South West Kootenay District, British Columbia, judging from the actual ore products of the mines this winter, is destined in the next year or two to become one of the richest and most important mineral centres in the world. Statistics show, that although the district is in its primary stage, the mines have developed ore veins rich enough to warrant the investment of over a million dollars. When these mines come to be worked systematically, there will be an Influx of Population, which will require beef and farm produce in large quantities. The limited quantity of really good farm land in the district to supply these requirements makes this

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

The New Zealand Legislature has passed an act making woman suffrage the law of the land. There seem to be no restrictions or qualifications in the law. Everywhere in the statute that the word voter or elector occurs, woman as well as man, female as well as male, is signified. In that colony, therefore, women are placed politically upon the same footing as men. They do not now labor under any political disabilities. Every woman who possesses the voter's qualification may have her name placed on the voters' list, and it is her privilege and her duty to vote for the lawmakers of the country. It is said, too, that the ladies appreciate the privilege, for shortly after the passage of the Act no fewer than 11,000 lady electors in Auckland had their names placed on the register.

The enfranchisement of the women may, and probably will, effect a great change in the politics of New Zealand. If all the women qualified take advantage of the power given them by the new law the number of voters will be nearly doubled. The population of New Zealand consists of 345,146 males and 305,287 females, and it is believed in Sydney, N.S.W., that the female part of the population is entitled to its full proportion of votes.

Woman suffrage will have a fair trial in New Zealand. The community is a highly intelligent one. The women of that colony are as well qualified to exercise political power as any women in the world. In Great Britain, and, perhaps, in the United States, there are a few gifted women who are better qualified to take a part in the management and direction of the political affairs of the nation than any that are to be found in New Zealand; but, taken as a whole, the standard of female intelligence is far higher in New Zealand than it is in the Mother Country.

The effects of the extension of the suffrage to the women of New Zealand will be carefully noted by political students in every part of the world. It will be interesting to watch whether the predictions of the opponents of female suffrage will be verified in that colony. Will the New Zealand women become unsexed? Will they grow coarse and mannish? Will they become so absorbed in politics as to neglect their domestic duties? Will their conduct as voters prove that home, and nowhere else, is the proper sphere of woman. We were going to prophesy, but we refrain.

Then another question of great interest crops up whenever the subject of womanhood suffrage is considered. It is this: Does not the power to vote imply or involve the power to hold those offices to which persons are chosen by the votes of their fellow citizens. Where womanhood suffrage obtains, are not women competent to become the representatives of the people and to enjoy all the privileges and to exercise all the powers that representatives of the people enjoy and exercise? Are not women in New Zealand now competent to become members of the Legislature and to occupy seats in the Cabinet? Cannot Mrs. Smith, of say, Auckland, aspire to become the Hon. Mrs. Smith and even Prime Minister Smith? Extending the suffrage to women in New Zealand opens a very wide field. As the Legislature of that colony has said "A," must it not in consistency say "B," and "C" and "D" and all the rest of the political alphabet? We must confess that we do not see where it can logically begin to place distinctions between the political powers and privileges and competencies of men and women. It has declared them to be politically equal, and it must not shirk any of the consequences of that declaration.

A FLAT CONTRADICTION.

One of those space liars who are a disgrace to the Canadian press informed the public in a dispatch from Ottawa that Archbishop Tache had written a letter to Sir John Thompson accusing the Premier of having acted towards him in bad faith. In order to prove that the information was such as could be relied upon, what purported to be an extract from a letter written by His Grace was inserted in the telegram. This is the alleged extract:

During several months the newspapers have been stating that I have been duped by you in reference to the schools of Catholics confided to my care. I thought the Government of my country would never have consented to such an act of tyranny. I am now almost convinced after having read the speech pronounced by you in Ontario that the newspapers have not misstated the facts, and that in truth, Mr. Prime Minister, you intended to deceive me.

The person who would doubt the genuineness of this extract would perhaps be considered by many to be unreasonably suspicious and incredulous. But it turns out that he would be only reasonably sceptical.

When the news reached Winnipeg, a reporter of the Tribune was sent to see Archbishop Tache to find what he had to say about the matter. To the reporter's surprise, no doubt, he was informed that the whole thing was a fabrication. These are the words in which the Archbishop's denial is couched:

The despatch dated Ottawa, November 5, and quoted from Le Canada, is absolutely and entirely without foundation as far as I am concerned. I never wrote to Sir John Thompson in the manner mentioned in Le Canada, nor in any way to justify such a report.

This is sufficiently explicit surely. But His Grace did not stop here. The interviewer proceeds:

Continuing, His Grace said he had never seen Sir John Thompson since November 1889, before the School Act was passed, and since that time the only communication he had had with him was to forward the petitions against the act to the Governor-General-in-Council. It was felt a little unpleasant to be called upon from time to time to deny these stories manufactured out of whole-cloth, "and," he added, jocularly, "it is wonderful to me how these good gentlemen can read letters that never were written, but (laughingly) I suppose it's all for the good of the public."

It is greatly to be regretted that the manufacturers of mischievous falsehoods like the foregoing, should have access to Canadian newspapers. They do the press a very great deal of harm, and they also injure the party in whose interests the lies are manufactured and circulated.

COAL TO BE FREE.

There has been a good deal of talk in the States as to what is to be done with bituminous coal by the framers of the new tariff. The mine-owners in some of the states have taken alarm and have besought the Committee of Ways and Means to keep the protective duty on coal, and rumors have been afloat that the framers of the tariff have been prevailed upon to make an exception of coal when they place the raw materials of manufacture on the free list. But this report has been proved to be false by a prominent member of that committee. That member made the following statement to the Washington correspondent of the Iron Age:

"The two articles, coal and iron ore," said he, "will be placed on the free list. I do not see how we can do otherwise. One of the cardinal features of the tariff revision is free raw material, and these two items are prominent in that category. I believe it will be done by a strict party vote in committee."

The New York Times, in commenting on this statement, says: "The committee should provide for the removal of the duties on wool, coal and iron ore at the beginning of its task."

The Growth of KASLO this year has been unprecedented in the history of British Columbia.

In one year the Forest Growth has been replaced by streets lined with substantial buildings.

The population has increased in one year from 300 to 3,000, and is being added to at the rate of nearly 100 per day.

The immediate construction of the KASLO - SLOCAN RAILROAD will cause development that will increase the population this year to twice 3,000.

It is the supply point and outlet for the now famous mines of the Slocan, ore from which has been shipped via Kaslo all winter.

The police have lost another object of their care in the person of Cross-eyed Annie, who died at her home in the Strachville settlement yesterday.

"PRAYER" is the subject announced for this morning's sermon at the Central church, Rev. P. McF. Macleod, pastor. The evening theme will be "Poverty and Riches."

The Ladies' Aid of the First Presbyterian church will give an "at home" at the residence of Mrs. Anton Viglius, 156 Pandora avenue, on Monday evening, November 20. They will also conduct a sale of work on December 13.

POSTMASTER NOAH SHAKESPEARE is to deliver one of his popular lectures on a trip around the world, at the Centennial Methodist church on the evening of the 22nd inst. A musical programme will also be furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Clement Rowlands and others.

The success of the Merchants' Exchange Club being no longer a matter of doubt, a more general interest is apparent, and within the past few days several new members have been added to the list. The club meets at 4 o'clock to-morrow afternoon to elect trustees and standing committees, and if only half the number of members who have stated their intention to be present attend, the meeting will be a large one.

The Young Ladies' Institute have decided to hold a Charity concert for the benefit of the poor about the middle of next month—not merely for the poor of the Roman Catholic congregation, but for any who are in need. The intention is to hold the concert a little before Christmas, in order to provide a Christmas dinner for those who are unable to do so themselves; and as this is a work of charity, the young ladies will spare neither time nor trouble to make it a success.

An inquest will be held to-morrow into the circumstances of the death of Captain Fauquier, who was drowned early yesterday morning off the C.P.N. Co's wharf. He was at the time returning from Esquimalt, where he had been serving in the capacity of an officer of the Royal Naval Reserve on H.M.S. Royal Arthur, to Vancouver, where his invalid wife and two children are living. It is suggested that the failure of the captain's sight, consequent upon injuries received in the burning of his last ship—the Oriental liner Ashley Brook—may have occasioned the fatal misstep.

ONCE a year the Young Men's Christian Association of the world engage in a special week of prayer. This year the date is November 12 to 19. To-day there will be a service at the rooms, 40 Broad street, at 4 o'clock, with addresses by Dr. Ernest Hall, Dr. John Lang and the secretary. Their meeting is for both ladies and gentlemen. Sunday evening the following clergymen will preach special sermons to young men in their own churches: Rev. J. E. Coombs, Calvary Baptist; Rev. Dr. J. Campbell, First Presbyterian; Rev. G. Mordey, Esquimalt, and Rev. S. Cleaver, Metropolitan Methodist.

CAPTAIN CAFFRE, a resident of Victoria West and a well-known master of small steam craft, died at his home, near Russell station, on Friday night. He had been up and about as usual, though not feeling quite himself, during the day, and in the evening complained of severe pains in the stomach and died in the arms of his wife, while she was endeavoring to ease his sufferings. Dr. John A. Duncan, who was called in shortly afterwards, did not believe the man dead, and simple tests seemed to show that he was right in his opinion. A small vein of the arm was opened and the blood flowed sluggishly. In the morning it had ceased to flow and post mortem staining was plainly visible in evidence of death. A certificate of death assigns heart disease as the cause and there will be no inquest, although such an example of suspended animation as was furnished on Friday night is very unusual—in fact, hardly ever heard of.

CAPTAIN COX—who, as president for two years of the British Columbia Sealers' Association, speaks with peculiar authority—is now in London, and gives an almost hopeless report of the effect of the Behring Sea award upon the British Columbia sealing industry. The close season laid down in the regulations is, he claims, fixed in entire disregard of the habits of the seal, as reported upon by United States and British experts alike, and in entire disregard of common sense too; and for this and other reasons, into which we have no space to enter this week, the award is, he says, bound, if adopted by the other foreign powers, to crush out this Colonial industry. This means the destruction of an industry yielding some $750,000 to British subjects each season, and destroying it not to protect the seal—for that, he claims, the regulations cannot do—but just to benefit a close United States monopoly. Another point upon which Captain Cox is emphatic is the price of seal skins. All manner of exaggerated reports are afloat as to the extent of the catch of this season. Speaking with the authority attaching to his experience and position, Captain Cox says this year's catch on the Northwest coast cannot well exceed 85,000 skins, and next season it cannot, in view of restrictions, be more than 25 per cent. of this total.—Canadian Gazette.

Rev. G. C. KING preaches at the Church of Our Lord (Reformed Episcopal) at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. to-day. There will be a children's service at 3 o'clock.

MESSEMAN JAMES BEALE, of H. M. S. Champion, having made an assignment to Mr. J. C. Jameson, for the benefit of his creditors, a meeting of the latter will be held on Wednesday morning at the offices of Mr. J. P. Walls.

The crew of the steamship Crown of England, who were reported to have deserted their vessel on Thursday and to have come to Victoria, have not, as far as can be ascertained, arrived here, and it is now said that only three of the men left the ship.

The Civil Service preliminary and qualifying examinations will be held on Tuesday, November 14, next, and following days, at the City Hall chamber. The sub-examiner will be Rev. E. F. Wilson, Burnside Road, Garsmouth P. O., who will be glad to give intending candidates any information respecting the examination.

Admission is free to the sale of work conducted by the Ladies' Aid in the lecture rooms of the Metropolitan church on Tuesday afternoon and evening. High tea served for a moderate quarter. An excellent programme of vocal and instrumental music has been prepared and a good time is ensured.

A SAN FRANCISCO dispatch of yesterday says: "Sealing circles are greatly exercised over notices received in this city that any vessel found sealing within the ninety-mile limit of the Commodore group of islands on the Siberian coast will be confiscated, together with all tackle. The officers and crew, it is stated, may expect sixteen months' imprisonment in the mines of Siberia."

At the request of the management of the Y.M.C.A., sermons will be preached from the majority of the city pulpits to-day for "young men." At the Metropolitan Methodist church the pastor, Rev. S. Cleaver, M.A., will preach at 11 a.m., and in the evening the subject at 7 p.m. will be "The Model Young Man in Prison," being a continuation of sermons on the life of Joseph.

The order of services for to-day at the James Bay Methodist church, Rev. E. Robson, is as follows: 10 a.m.—Prayer meeting for young converts and Christian workers; 11 a.m.—Special sermon, "The need of special effort for the salvation of young men," followed by communion; 2:30 p.m.—Sunday school and Bible class; 7 p.m.—Evangelistic service, subject of address, "The sole reason why men are not saved."

In the Centennial Methodist church this morning the special anthem will be "Gracious Spirit, Love Divine"; in the evening the anthem will be "What are These that are Arrayed in White Robes," and Mrs. Rowlands will sing as solo, "Almost Persuaded." The pastor, Rev. Joseph Hall, preaches at both services, his subjects being, in the morning, "How to Succeed in Life," and in the evening, "God's Call to Immediate Repentance—a sermon to young men."

OFFICIALS of the post office are having a good deal of trouble with the mail matter received from the wreck of the train which on Sunday last plunged into the Fraser river at Seabird Bluff. The water dissolved the mucilage so that the envelopes opened, and in many instances became separated from their contents, and as the writing has become pretty well obliterated it is no easy task to find out to whom the property should be sent. Some of the letters contained money, one registered having $50, and money, checks and drafts and other valuable papers were found loose in the bags. A number of photographs, now badly disfigured, are on hand without any indication as to whom they should be sent. It was the mail leaving Victoria on Sunday morning last that was in the wreck.

THE Young Women's Christian Temperance Union held their brief public meeting last evening in the Temperance hall. The chair was filled by the President, Miss Fawcett, who in a very able and interesting address explained the aims of the society and the plan of work they intended to take up during the year. The choir gave several selections under the directions of Miss O'Neil, who evidently had carefully trained them. In the solo which Miss O'Neil rendered she charmed all present. Miss Muford recited "The Woman's War," and Miss Richardson read "Pledged With Wine," and the audience received both with great applause. Addresses were given by Mrs. Teague and Mrs. Grant. After a short intermission, the young ladies received new members to their society. In the after programme Miss Sharp recited in an admirable manner "Only Sixteen" Miss Muford entered largely into the spirit of her second piece, which she gave owing to a disappointment in the programme. Mrs. Jenkins sang in a very sweet voice, "Only Once More," and was loudly applauded. The ladies are to be congratulated on their success.

SUDDENLY STRICKEN.

Mr. J. D. Pemberton Falls Dead From Heart Failure While Riding.

One of Victoria's Best Known Citizens—His Loss is Much Deplored.

A most melancholy occurrence terminated the amusement yesterday afternoon of those who attended the hunt club paper chase. Mr. J. D. Pemberton, one of the riders who took part in the hunt, fell dead from his horse as he was riding homeward shortly before 5 o'clock. Well advanced in years Mr. Pemberton was a very active man for his age, and though not feeling very well yesterday, he accompanied Mrs. Pemberton to the paper chase. This concluded, he and Mrs. Pemberton started home from Oak Bay by way of Oak Bay avenue, the gentleman some little distance behind Mrs. Pemberton. Nearing the junction of Cadboro Bay road he looked back to tell her husband to ride a little faster, but to her surprise he saw him lying prostrate in the road beside his horse. Assistance was at once procured and the unfortunate gentleman was carried to the residence of Mr. Wm. Noble close by. Doctors Richardson and Corsan were soon in attendance and everything possible was done, but it was evident that life was extinct, and indeed it seems evident that Mr. Pemberton died before he fell from his horse. Dr. Hanington, the family physician, arrived soon after the other doctors and corroborated this view. Mr. Pemberton had been suffering for some time from a weak heart and the immediate cause of death was the bursting of a small blood-vessel in that organ. When it was evident that life was extinct the body was laid out in Mr. Noble's house and removed to the family residence later in the evening. The coroner was notified but did not consider an inquest necessary.

The news of the fatality was heard with sorrow and consternation by friends of the family who had only a few hours before seen Mr. Pemberton apparently in good health, and it seemed almost impossible for some of them to realize that he was dead.

Joseph Despard Pemberton was one of the best known men in British Columbia, and one of Victoria's oldest and most respected citizens. Born in Dublin, Ireland, 72 years ago, he came to British Columbia as Colonial Surveyor in 1851. After serving in this capacity till 1864, he resigned and retired to his farm "Gonzales," then well outside of Victoria, and spent the life of a country gentleman. Taking a prominent part in the development of the colony, he was a member of the first Legislature, and Hon. Mr. Higgins now has in his possession a picture of the members, in which the late Mr. Pemberton, then a young man, is represented as standing behind the then Speaker, Hon. Mr. Helmcken. As Surveyor-General, Mr. Pemberton drew up plans for the dredging of the harbor and purchased machinery for carrying on the work. This was not prosecuted, however, till after Confederation, but the work has since been carried out on the lines laid down by him. A public-spirited citizen, Mr. Pemberton laid out and presented to the Government the present Oak Bay avenue, running through Gonzales farm, which at that time comprised some 1,200 acres. Of late years he entered into business with his son as J. D. Pemberton & Son, surveyors.

Mr. Pemberton leaves a widow, three sons and three daughters to mourn his loss. The funeral will probably take place on Tuesday.

A NOTICE was posted on the City Hall bulletin yesterday by Ald. Henderson, who is anxious to have a portion of Belleville street widened.

ALL the fine furniture and artists' proof engravings of Mr. J. A. T. Caton, 101 Kingston street, who is leaving for Europe on Tuesday, will be sold at auction on Monday, 13th inst., at 11 a.m., by G. Brynes; also a magnificent cottage grand piano, by Mann, of Biesfeld.

The following officers were elected at a meeting of the B. C. Marine Engineers' Association, last evening: Alex. McNiven, president; W. Cullom, vice-president; A. D. Goddyn, secretary-treasurer. Board of directors—John McGraw, J. M. Greenfields, R. McGill, W. H. Kettle and D. Kennedy. E. C. Shepherd, commissioner for Kootenay, and M. H. Chisholm, commissioner for New Westminster.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Jubilee hospital have held their final meeting in connection with the charity ball of 1893, and report the substantial sum of $543.10 as their contribution to the hospital funds as a result. The total receipts were $733.50 and the expenditure $190. The ladies take this opportunity of publicly thanking all who have assisted with cash or contributions, and also the Admiral and officers of H.M.S. Royal Arthur, for the services of the flag-ship's splendid band.

NANAIMO'S new paper, the Telegram, established this week, gives evidence of general support and encouragement on the part of the people of that city, who will no doubt soon come to look upon the morning newspaper as a necessity. The Telegram is identical in appearance with its recently deceased Vancouver namesake, whose plant has been removed to Nanaimo for the production of the new venture. W. J. Gallagher is the editor and manager. The local affairs of Nanaimo are presented in very interesting form, and the news of the outside world is given in the most readable shape. Altogether the paper appears to well deserve the good-will of the community in which it is published.

A Veteran's Story.

Mr. Joseph Hemmerich, an old soldier, 520 E. 14th St., N. Y. City, writes us voluntarily. In 1862, at the battle of Fair Oaks, he was stricken with typhoid fever, and after a long struggle in hospitals, lasting several years, was discharged as incurable with Consumption.

Doctors said both lungs were affected and he could not live long, but a comrade urged him to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Before he had finished one bottle his cough began to get loose, the choking sensation left, and night sweats grew less and less. He is now in good health and cordially recommends as a general blood purifier and tonic medicine, especially to his comrades in the G. A. R.

THE ISOLATION HOSPITAL.

Mayor Beaven Inspects the Completed Work and Sees a Fine Modern Institution.

Description of the Several Buildings—Precautions to Ensure Comfort and Safety.

Experience teaches, and that of the Victoria City Council in connection with the smallpox outbreak of last year, if costly and grievous, has resulted in the provision of the hospital for contagious diseases just completed, and which is located in proximity to the Jubilee hospital. Mayor Beaven by invitation paid a visit to the new buildings yesterday afternoon and, having been shown through by Contractor Brown, expressed himself as well pleased with the way in which the work has been carried out.

The plans were designed and drawn by Mr. W. R. Wilson, based on the most modern ideas of scientific sanitation and facilities for the effective treatment of dangerous diseases. Mr. J. G. Brown, the contractor, carried out the plans, the result being a set of buildings characteristic of the work of that well-known builder. They are solid, substantial and thoroughly finished, with nothing in their general construction that would give one the idea of cheapness or flimsiness. This is the impression given by each one of the fine structures composing the group. The two main buildings are constructed of brick, the walls being heavy and thick, and the roofs of slate. The larger of the two is what is called the public, or double ward block. It has a spacious, well-sheltered verandah opening on the south side, a double door six and a half feet in width forming the entrance, behind which is a vestibule of some six feet, after which the visitor has to pass through a corridor before entering the building. Here a wide hall way extends to the right and left, leading into the wards at each end. These rooms are 22x40 feet, with large windows throwing in abundance of light, a transom over each window opening so as to let the draft strike the ceiling first, instead of the patient lying beneath. In addition to this, there are other judiciously placed ventilators in the room, and heating facilities on the most improved method. In this latter feature, so important in the treatment of smallpox, nothing is wanting, the appointments being so arranged as to be in perfect control. The ceilings are lofty, and the walls smoothly finished, so as to be readily and easily cleansed. At one end of the ward is a doorway, giving access to the sanitary offices of that end of the building. These consist of a bath, water-closet and lavatory, all cheerful looking and well-lighted apartments, and fitted with every requisite. The floors throughout the building are finished in asphalt, and, like the walls, in the most approved manner with a view to cleanliness. Adjoining each ward are a pantry, storeroom and linen closet. The kitchen is a large apartment, well designed, and built for its especial purpose.

A little east of this building is situated the morgue, which is constructed of wood. To the west is what is termed the "cottage," or building for paying patients. This is of the same solid, and well finished character as the double ward block. It is designed to include a complete establishment in itself, and is accordingly supplied with every essential to that end. It is a two-story structure, with large ward, dining-room and general offices downstairs, the upper floor to be used for the purposes of the staff. The sanitary, culinary and other appointments are of the best.

The laundry, with its improvements and facilities, is a building that is well worthy of its name, supplied as it is with every possible convenience for the fulfilment of its purpose. The remaining structure is the disinfecting room, where the discharged or cured patients will have to go through the final process before they are allowed to re-mingle with their fellow-creatures outside. This also lacks nothing to make it complete in a sanitary and medical sense.

Special attention has been paid to the drainage system, which is carried out in such a manner as to entirely purify all matter from disease. The sewerage first enters a large cesspit at one end of the grounds; from there it is filtered through an extensive area of subsoil. Fire protection is afforded by hydrants connected with a four-inch main, which has been laid in from the city supply. The whole is well sheltered from the road, and what can be seen of the buildings from the thoroughfare stands out in marked and creditable contrast to the collection of shacks that graced the hospital grounds last year. The work of construction has been carried on expeditiously and to the satisfaction of all concerned.

PLATFORM AND STAGE.

Charles L. Davis' Engagement in "Alvin Joslin"—Digby Bell's Company Overwhelmed by Reverses.

"Incog" Dickson's New and Popular Play—Gossip and Chat of Stageland.

EXT Thursday, and possibly Friday evening, will see at The Victoria, Mr. Charles L. Davis in his ever-welcome popular comedy, "Alvin Joslin." The star has already been the recipient of enthusiastic greetings in this city. He is the same quaint, big hearted, good humored, eccentric "Old Uncle Alvin." His characterization of the down-east farmer visiting New York city is always funny, and the effect of his frolicsome adventures is generally to convulse the audience. Mr. Davis' company this season is fully as strong as ever, and the play will be presented with a complete outfit of new and appropriate scenery, and very realistic, being the same as used at his own theatre, "The Alvin," at Pittsburgh. "Alvin Joslin" is in its sixteenth year, and is probably one of the best known popular comedies of the era. Many millions have seen it and the older it grows the better it is liked.

Of course, the play is about the same as when last seen in this city, except that it has been given a new and handsome stage setting, and the "180 laughs in as many minutes" are still to be had. One especially effective scene is that in the second act, showing the East river by moonlight, the Brooklyn bridge prominently in the foreground. The shimmer of moonlight on the water makes it seem quite real. The climax is reached in this scene when Alvin plunges into the river and rescues the heroine from a watery grave. Independent of the dramatic portions, Mr. Davis is especially amusing in the comedy. In certain respects "Alvin Joslin" is a much better play than "The Old Homestead," and Mr. Davis a better actor than Denman Thompson.

Manager Jamieson, who has a contract with the Digby Bell Opera company to appear here on the 14th, 15th and 16th of December, says that he does not imagine they will show up, although he has had no notice of cancellation yet, and bases his opinion upon the following article in the last New York Mirror:

"I am on my way to the Casino to rehearse as principal comedian of the Lillian Russell Opera Comique company," said Digby Bell to a Mirror reporter. "What have I to say with regard to the closing of my starring tour in 'Jupiter' and 'The Tar and Tartar'?" Well, I travelled through the East with operas that were chestnuts there, and when I struck the West I found the World's Fair sucking in all available money. For instance, I would play in a town to $200, where I used to play to $1,000, and was told I was doing the banner week of the season—the average was $30 a night! Now, you know no star can stand that! Especially if his daily expenses are $450. I was out six weeks. I am delighted to be associated with Miss Russell, for I consider her a star of stars."

The theatrical event of the month will, without doubt, be Charles Dickson's appearance on the 24th and 25th in "Incog" and "Admitted to the Bar"—the latter his latest and best piece. This new comedy was produced for the first time at St. Louis, on September 10, and the New York Herald of the following day published the following telegraphed criticism:

"Admitted to the Bar," a dramatic comedy by Henry Doblin and Charles Klein, was to-night produced by Mr. Charles Dickson and his company of players at the Grand Opera House. It met with immediate success, certain calls being numerous. "The story of the play tells how Jefferson Ward, a young attorney who has just been admitted to the bar, discovers that the heir to a large fortune is an illegitimate son. This boy has been spirited away immediately after his birth, and has not been heard of since. Jeff promises the boy's mother to find him for her and win his fortune, without betraying her identity, she now being an honored wife and mother of Jeff's sweetheart. Under the laws of the State of California maternity must be proved, but Jeff, with true legal wit, evades the issue, and prevents the mother's name being disclosed, when, upon finding the boy, he brings to a successful issue his fight for the fortune. Incidentally another claimant to the estate also turns up in the person of Chester Bailey, who also knows who the mother is, and threatens to make it known unless Jeff sacrifices his sweetheart, Jessie Yarnelle, by permitting him (Bailey) to wed her. Jeff, of course, finally defeats both him and his project."

"Charles Dickson played the part of Jefferson Ward and astonished his audience, for his part is entirely different from any in which he has as yet appeared. It is full of comedy, yet has in it just a touch of pathos. Mr. Dickson was easy and natural in a part which might have been overdone. His support was excellent. Thomas Wise gave great zest to the performance, playing the part of a man weighing 280 pounds, and who continually grows fatter. Miss Dolly Nobles as Jessie, Mrs. Fitzpatrick as Helen, Miss Hunt as Dora, and Miss Burkhardt as Georgia were all above the average."

Corinne's new opera-burlesque "Hendrick Hudson" is a great laughing success. The new comedy of "Commodore Cob Sah," of which Clinton Stewart is the author, has been purchased by Nat. C. Goodwin.

Alexander Salvini has still another new play, constructed on lines similar to Don Cesar de Bazan and entitled "Zamar, the Vagabond King." The scene is Spain, and the time the reign of Philip II.

Robert Drouet, author of "Doria," Effie Ellsler's present play, is writing another drama for that star, to be called "Montana."

"Gorman Lessons," a one act sketch by May M. Ward, is Dickson's curtain raiser this season.

Annie Pixley, the well-known comedienne, died in London last Wednesday of apoplexy.

"ABJURE OR DIE."

A Historical Painting of Importance Given to the Art World From Victoria.

The Story of the Scene Depicted by M. Quentin's Well Directed Brush.

Professor Rene Quentin's studio in the Five Sisters' block at present contains a large historical painting, upon which M. Quentin has been working intermittently during the past six months, and to which he is now giving the finishing touches. The canvas is six feet long by four feet six, and the picture one that tells its story without the aid of an interpreter.

The scene is laid at the doors of the Convent des Grands Augustines; the time—the night of the St. Bartholomew massacre of the sixteenth century. Those who have read Prosper Merimee's Chronique du regne de Charles IX., will have no difficulty in recognizing the terrible tableau—the heroic death of Comte d'Aubigne.

Vacillating Charles IX had, at the solicitation of his mother, issued a decree that Catholics and the clergy arm themselves and conspicuously wear on St. Bartholomew's eve a white cross, in token of their faith—for on that night all who had not abjured the Protestant religion and assumed the symbol were to be mercilessly put to death. Among these doomed to extermination were Comte d'Aubigne, a noted historian, and his family. The former owned as his dearest friend the Abbot, on whose protection, if worst came to worst, he relied. The dreadful night arrived, and with the shrieks of the assassinated ringing in his ears and the flames of burning Protestant homes reddening the sky, the Count fled with his family to the doors of the great church where, in the Abbot's friendship, he hoped to find security. It is here that the picture takes up the tale.

The doors of the church are opening and the Abbot and his robed procession, bearing candle and cross, are emerging, the former holding aloft a silver crucifix. At the foot of the steps d'Aubigne has implored protection, and, halting half-way, the Abbot has exclaimed: "It is not for me to set aside the King's decree. Abjure or die!" On the one side are seen the bodies of others whose deaths have preceded those of the noble family. In the centre is the heroic figure of the Count, wounded but still battling bravely for the wife whose prostrate body he protects, and the daughter who supplicates the murderous soldier for mercy. A son, standing by his father's side, has just received his mortal wound. The whole picture is full of dramatic fire—it impresses with the dread meaning of the scene.

To the left, over the armored troops and the silent Seine, the gray light of morning is breaking, while to the right the dull glare of the burning city mingles with the feeble gleam of the night lantern— weird and depressing. The composition of the picture is creditable to the artistic imagination of the composer, the coloring in some particulars horribly realistic, and the effects of the strange and varied lights handled with genius. The painting is probably the most notable of its class, or perhaps any other, which has been given to the art world from British Columbia, and it will no doubt attract more than passing attention at the Midwinter Exposition, where it is expected it will be exhibited after Victorians have had an opportunity of inspecting it.

M. Quentin is a pupil of the great masters Gerome and Lawrence, several peculiarities of whose styles are to be traced in this latest production of his brush. "Abjure or Die," as the picture is entitled, has been produced under great difficulties, neither costumes nor models being obtainable.

M. Tsakni, a Russian writer, has published an interesting work entitled "Queer Religious Sects of Russia," from which it appears that there are not less than 16,000,000 followers of insane and cranky notions in the Empire of the Czar. One of these sects is known as "Runaways." As soon as they embrace the new faith they fly from their villages and towns, destroy their identity as such as possible, and henceforth live as savages. "The Christs" are another curious sect. They worship each other! The chief ceremonies are a crazy species of dancing, yelling as loudly as possible, and pounding stones with sticks. The "Skoptyes" believe in self-mutilation, but will not submit to amputation, even though it would save life. Like the "Christs" they dance and yell for hours without intermission. Still another of these deluded sects is the "Dumb Boys." Why they are called Dumb Boys no one seems to know, but it is a curious fact that the sect is composed of both sexes, old men being in the majority. It is claimed that some of these aged patriarchs have not spoken in fifty years, although perfectly able to do so did they so desire. "The Suicides" are a sect led by M. Souckeliff, who preaches self-destruction as an absolute necessity to salvation. He is very eloquent, and it is said that he often leaves a church with a dozen suicide remains strewn about the floor.

THE "SAN MATEO'S" REPAIRS

Will Be Completed in This City by the Albion Iron Works' Company.

Daring Attempt at Robbery—The "Formosa" Chartered New Light—Wharf Gossip.

The contract for the repair of the San Mateo has been awarded to the Albion Iron Works of this city, and on Monday the vessel will be brought from Esquimalt harbor and docked at the outer wharf, where the repairs are to be executed. A part of her coal will have to be discharged before the repairs can be commenced. The time allowed for the repairs is twenty-one days from the time of commencement, and the work will be rushed by gangs of men working night and day. There will be sixty thousand pounds weight of steel in the new plates to be put in place of those shattered by the explosion. Besides those from Victoria, tenders for the repair work were received from Vancouver and from San Francisco.

DISAPPOINTED WATER THIEVES.

An unsuccessful but bold attempt at robbery was made on Friday night on board the Seattle sailing schooner South Bend, which lies at anchor a short distance above the E. & N. railroad bridge, and a little way off the Indian reserve. The thieves were after the schooner's equipment. Two unknown men boarded the vessel from the reserve side by means of a small Siwash canoe, apparently hardly large enough for a party of four. They went up to the cabin, where they found the watchman of the vessel. He had been aroused by the noise the intruders made in the forward hold, and coming on deck from the cabin, discovered the canoes. So surprised and frightened by the watchman's appearance were the robbers, that careless of their plunder, they jumped heedlessly into the canoe and upset it. Fortunately for themselves they were good swimmers and, though with considerable difficulty, reached shore safely. The watchman, however, secured the canoe, which he keeps in his possession.

PATOS ISLAND LIGHT.

A notice has been issued by the U. S. Lighthouse Board stating that on or about November 30 a fixed red lens lantern light will be exhibited 30 feet above mean high water, from a white stake 10 feet high, on the northwesterly extremity of the Patos islands, entrance from Georgian Bay into Canal de Haro, Washington Sound, Washington. A one-story fog signal house and a one-and-a-half story double dwelling stand near the light, to the southward and eastward. The approximate geographical position of the new light is:

Latitude north 47° 42' 22".

Longitude west 122° 58' 12".

THE "FORMOSA" LIBELLED.

The British bark Formosa, which recently arrived at this port from Liverpool, was yesterday libelled at the suit of the Canada Patent Co., who claim compensation for one hundred odd pounds of raw material ruined during the vessel's stormy passage out. The defence is that captain and crew used every endeavor to save ship and cargo, and any losses sustained were therefore by act of Providence. The case will be heard to-morrow.

THE "BAWMORE" CHARTERED.

The San Francisco Examiner of a recent date says: "Grace & Co. have chartered the Bawmore for two years, and will convert her into a tank steamer when the repairs she is now undergoing are completed. The charterers have discovered that San Francisco is a petroleum market, and will put her on between the Peru wells and this port."

FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

The following are the Victoria passengers on board the steamer Queen, due from San Francisco to-morrow evening: H. Schwartz and wife, H. C. Boch, W. T. Murrish, Miss C. Warden, Miss Edna Reid, Miss Edwards and Miss Casey.

MARINE NOTES.

The well-known barks Archer and Martha Fisher are once more en route to Victoria from Liverpool, and will be due to arrive about Christmas, as both are out 100 days to-day. They carry full general cargoes. Tug Lorne towed the bark Detroit up to Nanaimo yesterday morning. From Nanaimo the Lorne will probably cross over to Vancouver and bring the bark Candida down to Victoria.

Another of the sealing fleet which will next year engage in operations on the Japan Coast is the Mermaid. She is now on the Star ways, being made ready for the cruise. During this week the steamer Quadra will be absent from port, as she leaves to-morrow for the vicinity of Comox to replace some old wooden buoys with iron ones.

The steamer Cariboo and Fly arrived down from the Fraser yesterday morning with a load of salmon for the bark City of Carlisle.

The British bark Harold, which is under charter to Robert Ward & Co., Ltd., to load lumber, is now due from Shanghai.

Steamer Falcon is undergoing slight repairs.

It shall be the duty of the Pound-keeper, or his assistant, before making delivery of any animal so impounded, before sale, or on payment of surplus money after sale, to obtain from the person or persons claiming the same, his, her, or their name or names and residence, and to enter the same in a book, together with the date when such animal was impounded, and the date when the same was sold or redeemed, as the case may be.

Sec. 16. If no person shall appear to claim such animal or animals so impounded within three days after the same may have been impounded, or if the person claiming such animal shall refuse or neglect to pay the penalty and the allowance and expenses chargeable thereon, it shall be the duty of the Pound-keeper to give at least seven days' notice of the sale thereof.

Sec. 17. Such notice shall contain a general description of the animal or animals impounded, and shall be posted up in some conspicuous place at the pound where the same shall have been impounded, and also at the City Hall.

Sec. 18. If, at the expiration of the time specified in the said notice, no person shall appear to claim the animal or animals therein specified and referred to, or if any person shall appear to claim the same, but shall refuse or neglect to pay the penalty and the allowance and the expenses accrued and charged on such animal or animals, it shall be lawful to sell the same, and the animal or animals shall be offered to public competition and sold to the highest bidder by the Pound-keeper at the City Pound.

Sec. 19. If the animal be a horse, ass, mule, ox, bull, cow, or other cattle, it shall be advertised in a newspaper at least three days before such sale.

Sec. 20. If, after the sale of any animal as aforesaid, the purchaser does not immediately pay the price thereof, the Pound-keeper may forthwith cause the animal to be re-sold, and so continue to do until the price is paid.

Sec. 21. In case of the sale of any impounded animal or animals, the said Pound-keeper shall retain out of the proceeds of such sale sufficient to pay the amount of the penalty and the allowance and all expenses chargeable by him on account of the said animal or animals.

Sec. 22. If, after such sale, and whilst the proceeds thereof remain in the hands of the Pound-keeper, the former owner of any animal or animals so impounded and sold shall appear and claim the proceeds of such sale, it shall be the duty of the Pound-keeper to deduct from the proceeds of such sale the penalty and the allowance and all expenses chargeable under this By-law, to ascertain the name and address of such owner, and to pay over the balance of the proceeds of such sale, if any, to the person so claiming to be the owner, upon satisfactory proof of ownership being given to such Pound-keeper.

Sec. 23. No person or persons shall break open, or in any manner, directly or indirectly, aid or assist in breaking open the pound, or shall take or let any animal or animals thereon, without the consent of the Pound-keeper.

Sec. 24. Each and every person who shall hinder, delay or obstruct any person or persons engaged in driving, leading, or carrying to the pound any animal or animals liable to be impounded under the provisions of this By-law shall, for each and every offence, be liable to the penalty hereinafter mentioned.

Sec. 25. If any dog, impounded as aforesaid, is not redeemed within ten days after such impounding, it shall be lawful for the Pound-keeper to kill it.

Sec. 26. Every person who pays the annual tax for a dog, as mentioned in the "Revenue By-law," shall thereupon be entitled to have such dog registered, numbered, and described in a book to be kept for this purpose at the office of the City Treasurer, and to receive a metal badge or tag, stamped with the year for which the tax is paid, and the number of the registration, and in case any dog shall be found at large within the municipality at any time without such a badge or tag, as aforesaid, such dog shall be deemed to be at large within the meaning of clause 8 of this By-law.

Sec. 27. In the event of a dog being impounded and the owner proving to the satisfaction of the Pound-keeper or the City Treasurer that the annual tax had been paid and the metal badge or tag had been removed before the impounding of the dog, it shall be lawful for the Pound-keeper to release such dog from the pound at once, and enter the particulars in his book.

Sec. 28. It shall be lawful for the Pound-keeper, or his assistant, or other persons, as aforesaid, to impound any dog found running at large in the city and not wearing a metal badge or tag in accordance with the last preceding section of this By-law.

Sec. 29. No person shall keep or harbour any dog which habitually disturbs the quiet of any person, or which endangers the safety of any person by biting or otherwise.

Sec. 30. Every person convicted of an infraction of any provision of this By-law shall forfeit and pay therefor a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars.

Sec. 31. The "Pound By-law, No. (145, 30)," is hereby repealed.

Sec. 32. This By-law may be cited as the "City Pound By-law, 1893."

BILL AND CLARENCE.

Nye Says His Valet Likes Him Because He Is a Good Provider.

An Answer to Sir Edwin Arnold's Description of American Scenery.

Copyright, 1893, by Edgar W. Nye.]
No. 3, HAZELWOOD MANIONS, SUTTON COURT ROAD, NEAR KINGS HIGHWAY, CARE MRS. PRESSLY, LONDON, GREAT BRITAIN, WEST CENTRAL, ENGLAND, Oct. 28, 1893.

The above was my address for a week, but now I have changed it. I also turned it inside out and cut off one of the flounces in the back. I am now living near Buckingham palace, where the Queen lives at. I go over every day to see how her lawn is doing. I told her gardener that I had just gone through the business and could give her points, so he and I are planting the bald places on her lawn. The weather has been so dry, every one says, that lawns have all suffered. Still it doesn't seem to be so blistering dry to me. I have never allowed myself to be five minutes from my umbrella since I came, and the poor crossing sweepers who keep the mud off so one can get on the other side win my sympathy and keep me out of change. In fact, instead of changing flags I am "changing sovereigns," in the language of a Texan whom I met on this side.

Clarence, my valet, is still with me. He points out what I ought to eat and then eats it. I certainly never saw a man with such a groping for food, such a yearning for groceries, cereals and endogenous asparagus.

He took a vacation the other day and went into the country about eight or ten miles, which simply takes me into a muddier part of London, but he came home to his meals, and after eating us out of house and home returned to his play.

It is very hard for an American gentleman to know how to treat a valet. I've had Clarence two weeks now, and all he has done so far was to reach up my back for a suspender that had escaped me. He said he could shave me when I engaged him, and he could if I did not regret it so after he did it. He got me in a chair upholstered with horse hair cloth, and which I fell out of twice while he was working my face into place by means of my nose, then he shaved me with a razor that was captured during the Crimean war, and I can truly say that Plum Levi, Patton avenue, Asheville, North Carolina, U. S. A., in his best flights of genius could not approach Clarence. Plum might have been as gifted in the matter of torture, but he never had the preceding generations of that sort of thing to help him.

I've a good notion to retire Clarence, for he has got after all a degree of appetite and dignity which make people mistake him for the gentleman of the two. Possibly it's partly, too, because I'm 15 years younger than he and naturally more frisksome and debonaire.

The second morning after I took these lodgings I did not get my boots (sometimes called shoes) from the blocker down stairs, and so I went down myself. The blocker said that he did not block servants' shoes. He mistook me for Clarence.

A kind Creator gave Clarence dignity to make up for his gnawing hunger.

I let him eat with me, for I actually suffer when I have to eat alone. The kind hospitable Englishman looks out for my dinners, but the breakfasts are especially lonesome without Clarence. He has done valeting for others, among them an American and two Australians. He likes me the best, he says, because I am a better provider. As he sort of directs my diet so that I won't get the gout, which threatened me for 10 days and nights, he makes suggestions which suit him.

For breakfast we take a sole, with a boiled egg, toast, coffee and possibly some liver and bacon, with apollinaris, which is five pence a bottle. Then for lunch at 1:30 we have a beautiful mackerel—not a fossil mackerel, with his bosom full of brine, but a tender, blue eyed mackerel, with a radiant complexion and genuine good feeling. Then a big, juicy steak, with brown gravy. Oh, sir, me eyes, but that steak and that gravy make England look good to me, and I am willing to let bygones be bygones. Then there is fine old stilton cheese, with what I used to call a crackery, but now a biscuit. Also celery and Brussels sprouts, with a bottle of Burgundy, because water here is only used externally.

Then at 6:00 we have dinner. I have the name of paying for it and Clarence eats it. It is a fine broiled fish after some anchovies and pea soup. Then a joint and a bird with a bottle of Moselle and sweets. Sweets are mostly tarts. I've never eaten one. They look like a medallion in paste and gooseberry, and I've often that if Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen of Great Britain, Empress of India and Tamer of Ireland would some day while I'm up at her place for dinner decorate me with one of them, I'm wear it on my breast forever. I saw Sir Edwin Arnold a few days in Piccadilly, and the following day saw a column or two devoted to him in The Telegraph to America, and generally to local songs like the "Swanee River," comparing our local songs with those of the Scotch, the Irish, French, Italian, and so forth. When he says our scenery is "stringy," however, I say that his own is very tart. Here follows Arnold's piece:

"These thoughts come to me, remembering something that happened in a long journey which I took last year between New York and New Orleans, going round by the south and following what is called by enterprising railway advertisers there the 'Sunset route.' Train travelling in the States is wonderfully well organized and fairly comfortable for long trips, but it cannot be said that the average scenery of the great republic is beautiful or interesting. There is an aspect about the general American landscape which can be best defined as 'stringy.' The trees are spindly, the wild growth of woods and wastes is ragged, and even in some of the prettier combinations hideous collections of black and half burnt stumps deface the prospect and make the land seem like a collection of cemeteries in memory of its bygone forests.

"When once you get out of the large and well built towns and cities, the country regions are full of mean and ugly wooden houses made of weather board, and as you go farther south these degenerate into ragged farmhouses, which paint upon their roofs the names of patent medicines in staring letters, or negro shanties scarcely more human in appearance than pigsties. South of Washington there are certainly some charming regions under the Blue ridge and among the woods of Virginia, and climate and scenery both alter a little for the better when the train crosses into North Carolina, and you run down by Hendersham and Raleigh, Spartenburg, Columbia and Augusta, through South Carolina.

"The eye, saddened by the absence of furred and feathered life in the desolated rural districts of the North, sees here with pleasure the buzzard and the hawk hovering in the sky, the wild fowl clustering upon the inlets and swamps, and in the forests squirrels and chipmunks playing about, with perhaps a deer or two. The cypresses and great white sycamores are a welcome change from the live oak and maple and fir, and the negro population, growing denser, lends an interesting feature to the prolonged journey.

"Farther south your train goes 'marching through Georgia,' and you begin to feel the influences of a subtropical latitude in the vegetation and character of the common life. Types of the Southerner and his belongings enter and leave the carriage and divert by the novelty of their ideas and language, while the odd mixture of American with Indian, French and classical names for the towns entertains you in passing from Columbia to Augusta, Augusta to Macon, Macon to Vienna and Abbeville, and so by Val d'Osta, Trader's Hill, Jasper, Live Oak, Talahassee, and dozens of strangely entitled spots, to Bristol.

"But it is all somewhat tedious in its monotony until, approaching Florida and the coast of the gulf of Mexico, you come into more special scenery, where the Spanish moss swings upon the dark forest trees, and the palmetto shoots up from the lagoons, and over the intermin-able sea marshes between Appalachee bay and New Orleans flights of long tailed shrikes and gray crows fill the air, and the stagnant waterswarms with catfish and alligators. I like America, and have good reason to like her, but look back upon the greater part of that prodigious journey with the recollection of a fatigue and ennui such as few railway trips ever left behind.

"As you get westward, between New Orleans and the Pacific coast, passing through Louisiana and the immense deserts of southern Texas, things are different. Vast as is the monotony there also, you cannot pass for the first time across the Colorado river and through the sand wastes of the Apache mountains to El Paso and the Rio Grande without pleasure in studying the extraordinary landscapes. It is another world from that which you have traversed when you rattle along through the curious thickets of candelabra cactus on the Llano Estacado of New Mexico, and thence to Arizona and the wonderful foothills of Lower California."

I do not know where Hendersham is, but imagine he means Hendersonville. We are grateful for what he says of North Carolina and the railroad, but we dislike what he says of "stringy" scenery. That is not the fault of nature, for it is beautiful and prosperous to look at. The farmers who have sold their very roofs to purveyors of mandrake pills, who are such by special appointment of His Royal Dullness the Prince of Wales, will never come to a good end.

Still that is pleasant to me than the scenery along the underground railway. Did you ever get in a cheap car—down cellar where the sun has never dried the mud that Julius Caesar brought with him from Rome, and where the same old air is still stagnating, filled with the sulphur and sewer gas that Brutus complained of in the county papers 1108 years B. C., over the signature of Pro Bono Pub lico If not, you should do so then.

I hate to pick a quarrel with a poet who is older and smarter in every way than I, but I'd rather ride among long tailed shrikes and stringy trees that are just "doing the best they can" than to mount a cold, stenchy car worth about £2 and 80 cents and plunge through the darkness, the bad air of this black gopher hole, and with the risk of losing your Waterbury watch before you can say John H. Robinson. And, speaking of advertisements, there is none that can or does approach this God Save the Queen and devil take the rest country.

Clarence agrees with me and has traveled a good bit.

A man here who has been somewhat snubbed by Her Majesty told me a lot of scandal about the royal family that would make good interesting reading, but why should I break off with the royal family and lose good neighbors by printing these stories?

Moreover, to do it would require 10 years right off my life if I did the family substantial justice.

STOCKS IN NEW YORK.

The Day's Sensation, a Break in New York and New England—Market Closes Weaker.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.—The sensation of to-day's session at the Stock Exchange was the break in New York and New England from 28½ to 26½ right at the opening of business, on the announcement from Philadelphia that the Lehigh Valley had made an alliance with the New York, New Haven & Hartford. The general market did not respond to any extent, and later on moved up ½ to 1 per cent. in sympathy with a rise in Chicago Gas from 61½ to 63½. The "shorts" were frightened into covering at this time of a report from the West that Mayor Swift will veto the Electric Light & Power Company ordinance just passed, but defeated in their efforts to depose Chicago Gas they made a demonstration against the other industries and were successful to a degree. American Coal Oil was forced down from 31½ to 29; General Electric from 44½ to 42½, and American Sugar from 99½ to 98½. Chicago Gas eventually succumbed and returned to 61½. Considering the heaviness of the industrial group, the railway list held remarkably well, declining only ½ to ¾ per cent. The associated banks last week gained $5,815,275 in the reserve, and now hold $57,828,725 in excess of the legal requirements. The market felt off weaker in tone and anywhere from ½ to ¾ per cent. below Friday's final figures. The total sales were 941,306 shares. Closing bids: Atchafon & Topeka, 18½; Burlington & Quincy, 82½; Canadian Pacific, 71½; Central Pacific, 19; Chicago, Cincinnati, Columbus & St. Louis, 35½; Delaware & Lackawanna, 169; Erie, 13½; Wells Fargo, 120; Great Northern preferred, 107½; Lake Shore 127½; Louisville and Nashville, 48½; Missouri Pacific, 24½; New York Central, 102; North American, 5½; Northern Pacific, 7; do preferred, 24½; North Western, 104½; Oregon Navigation, 25; Oregon Improvement, 11½; Pacific Mail, 17; Reading, 21½; Rock Island, 67; Southern Pacific, 18½; St. Paul, 63½; Texas Pacific, 7½; Western Union Telegraph, 87½; Bar silver, 69½c. per ounce. Money on call, 1 to 2. Foreign exchange sterling, 4.82½ for 60 days; 4.85 on demand. Union Pacific firsts of 1896, 102½; Central Pacific firsts of 1897, 103 bid.

WOMAN'S WORLD IN PARS.

A private letter gives me information of some excellent work done by ladies in Topeka. Two years ago Mrs. Alice C. Woolger of that city formed a plan for the study of topics of interest in connection with the World's fair. Ladies organized themselves into a club which, unlike too many women's societies, conformed strictly to parliamentary usage, the members making a special study of such usage to familiarize themselves with the rules which govern civilized and enlightened meetings. The meetings are continued still for the excellent purpose of investigating other lines of thought, though the fair is at its close. The lessons are still under the conduct of Mrs. Woolger, and the society is called the Nineteenth Century Study club. The subjects embrace things which every woman needs to know, such as the government and history of our own country, political economy and a thorough knowledge of the money question. A United States senator might feel rather proud of himself if he could satisfactorily answer all the questions concerning national economics that these ladies study. Once a month a lesson in household economy is given. I honor that Nineteenth Century Study club of Topeka.

Tea is to many women what alcohol and tobacco are to men.

A French lady, Mlle. Mulot, has invented a new system of writing for the blind which combines both the raised letter and ordinary systems in one. The person writes with a blunt pencil upon a sheet of thin blue paper. Underneath the blue paper is a sheet of blotting paper, and upon this the blunt pencil traces through the blue paper impressions so deep that the sensitive finger tips, which are eyes to the blind, can follow and read them. At the same time the pencil marks upon the blue paper are easily read by the pupil's teacher or by anybody with eyesight.

At last a woman, really a woman, has stormed the stronghold of the grim old London Times and received a regular appointment upon its editorial staff. She is a Miss Shaw, and her post is the important one of editorially looking after colonial matters for The Times.

The task before women now is to cultivate to the utmost their intellectual powers and their business ability. Their affections have been exclusively cultivated too long.

One of the best paid women teachers in the country is Miss Mathilde E. Coffin, connected with the public schools of Detroit. She receives a salary of $2,500.

A grand opening for women workers is that afforded by the present general desire for physical culture. Women who have taken courses of really first class instruction in this branch find excellent paying places as teachers as soon as they are ready. ELIZA ARCHARD CONSER.
